

The Parable of the Sower

The sower sowed his seed into three types of ground. The rocky ground meant the roots could not grow deep, the thorny ground smothered and choked the plant, but “The seed sown into good ground grew well and produced a plentiful crop.”

No matter changes in rain or temperature, the good soil gives the seed exactly what it needs to put down deep roots and grow into a happy, healthy plant.

We believe our five values of – compassion, honesty, aspiration, responsibility and determination that we instil in our children, ensure that they cultivate roots, rich in character that will empower them to grow and flourish throughout their lives, no matter what obstacles they might face and enable them to lead others so that they can do the same, be that within their family, work place, community or the wider world. We believe our children will leave our school with the ability to ensure the ground is good for others to grow and flourish in the way that they have.

We work together in collaborative partnerships to achieve excellence through cultivating character, sharing talents and pursuing innovation
